Mozambique is experiencing escalating climate disasters, including droughts related to El Niño. The droughts have amplified food insecurity, plunging communities into hardship. In parallel, Mozambique is facing its most severe cholera outbreak in 25 years and is grappling with ongoing internal conflict that has resulted in a complex and multifaceted crisis with significant humanitarian implications. including high levels of internal displacement. Since December 2023, attacks by non-state armed groups have displaced over 132,000 people in northern Mozambique. According to the 2024 Humanitarian Response Plan, 2.25 million people in Mozambique need humanitarian assistance, including 1.7 million people affected by conflict and displacement and over 429,000 people could be impacted by extreme weather events.

In response, the OCHA-managed Pooled Funds are enabling timely and strategic humanitarian assistance to affected people. Since 2023, the Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF) has allocated $24.3 million to Mozambique, enabling critical humanitarian responses. In addition, OCHA is seeking to support collective anticipatory action for predictable hazards in Mozambique, building on and scaling up existing initiatives.

In May 2024, OCHA established a Regional Humanitarian Fund for Eastern and Southern Africa, building on the success and performance of the Regional Humanitarian Fund in West and Central Africa. The Fund's first envelope will be in Mozambique, expanding access to pooled funding, particularly for national and local actors, and increasing much needed support to vulnerable and hard-to-reach communities.

Accountability to Affected People (AAP) benefiting 30,000 people. The IOM-managed project funded through the envelope aimed to improve the collective AAP mechanisms in Mocimboa da Praia. The project focused on strengthening common complaint and feedback mechanisms, establishing information channels, and supporting civil society and local authorities through community dialogues and town halls.

Additionally, OCHA extends thanks to donors of the Mozambique country envelope, including the UK and Ireland for their explicit commitment. However, in light of increasing humanitarian needs, more support is needed to provide life-saving assistance to affected people and strengthen humanitarian efforts at the frontlines of the crises in Mozambique.

Inclusive education for children living with disabilities

Pemba and Montepuez districts, Cabo Delgado province, Mozambique. The protracted conflict in the northern province of Cabo Delgado has resulted in the displacement of many people, half of whom are children.

Already overwhelmed, schools and healthcare facilities were struggling to provide services to everyone in need, particularly children with disabilities, who are often overlooked in a displacement crisis.

CERF funding helped UNICEF to establish two Support Units for Children with Special Educational Needs in Pemba and Montepuez districts.

These allowed over 3,000 children to access inclusive education, and those who needed them were able to have customized wheelchairs and other assistive devices, giving them a start toward re-establishing normalcy. Additionally, four teachers were also trained in Sign Language and Braille to facilitate inclusive education.
