SAVING LIVES TOGETHER

HUMANITARIAN SITUATION

The Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) has experienced widespread food shortages since the mid-1990s. Approximately 70 per cent of the population - 18 million of 24.9 million people - is considered food insecure and unable to access an adequate and diverse nutritious diet. 60 per cent of the population has inadequate access to essential health services, including vaccines and 1.7 million children are at risk of deadly childhood diseases. In addition to persistent humanitarian needs, DPRK faces recurring natural hazards, such as floods and droughts.
